NEWBURY WITH SPEENHAMLAND

NEWBURY is a municipal borough, market and union town, and is in the Newbury division of the county. It is the head of a petty sessional division and county court district, in the rural deanery of its own name, archdeaconry of Berks and diocese of Oxford. The town is on the river Kennet, and is intersected by the Kennet and Avon canal, over which is a stone bridge of one arch, with a balustraded parapet; it is near the Hampshire border, 56 miles by road and 53 by rail from London, 17 south-west from Reading, 9 east from Hungerford and 19 south-west from Wallingford. The Great Western railway has a station here on the branch from Reading to Hungerford and Devizes. The Newbury section of the former Didcot, Newbury and Winchester (now Great Western) railway, which affords communication with the chief manufacturing centres of the north and with the port of Southampton, was opened for traffic between Didcot and Newbury in April, 1882, and between Newbury and Winchester in May, 1885, and a junction with the main line of the Southern railway at Shawford, near Winchester, in accordance with the Didcot, Newbury and Southampton Railway Act, 1888, was effected in October, 1891. The Lambourn Valley railway, a single line connecting Lambourn with Newbury, was opened April 2nd, 1898.

TOWN HALL, NEWBURY.

The town is of very ancient origin. Antoninus makes mention in his "Itinerary" of the station of Spinae, and Newbury, as its name implies, arose and had its beginning out of the ruins of Spinae, and therefore, says Camden, "Newburie must acknowledge Speen as its mother." In Saxon times there was a town here of 51 houses, belonging to a Thane named Ulward, which in Domesday the Normans called "Uluritone."

Newbury sent two members to Parliament in the reign of Edward I. and in the reign of Edward III. being then a place of commercial importance, it sent three representatives to a great council at Westminster. The town was incorporated by Queen Elizabeth in 1596, and James I. Charles I. and Charles II. granted it additional privileges. It is now governed by a corporation, consisting of a mayor, six aldermen and eighteen councillors. The borough has a commission of the peace and a separate court of quarter sessions. An Act was obtained in the year 1825 for the improvement, lighting and paving of the town. The borough area was extended by Act of Parliament, 41 and 42 Vict. (1878) and now embraces Speenhamland, part of Greenham and other outlying portions of the town. The gas undertaking was also transferred to the Corporation under the provisions of the Borough Extension Act. The town is supplied with water by the Corporation whose works are situated at the western boundary of the borough, near Northcroft, from a well sunk through the valley alluvium (peat on gravel) into the chalk; it is 28 feet deep from the surface, with a 7 feet brick cylinder; the yield is from 20,000 to 34,000 gallons per hour; from the well the water is raised to a reservoir at Speen, about half a mile to the north-west, and at a height of 110 feet above the surface of the well, the capacity of the reservoir being about 400,000 gallons. The town was thoroughly drained in 1894.

By Local Government Board Order No. 31,902, those parts of Greenham and Speen civil parishes in the municipal borough were added to Newbury civil parish.

The church of St. Nicholas is a spacious edifice of stone in the Late Perpendicular style, built in the latter part of the reign of Henry VII. or the beginning of the reign of Henry VIII. chiefly by the munificence of John Smalwood, alias Winchcombe, a clothier, commonly known as "Jack of Newbury," whose monogram J. S. occurs very frequently on the ancient bosses of the roof of the nave; it consists of chancel with side chapels (one of which is used as an organ chamber and vestry), clerestoried nave, aisles, north and south porches and a western tower of three stages, with a battlemented parapet and octagonal turrets at the angles; these have pyramidal summits with vanes and are surrounded by crocketed pinnacles; the tower contains eight bells and a clock; the chancel is lined with Derbyshire alabaster on flat panelling and opens to the ancient chapels by wide depressed arches; the reredos has seven panels and crocketed heads and a gilt background bearing the sacred monogram and figures; there is also a reredos inserted in memory of the Rev. E. I. Gardiner, rector 1878-1901; there are three sedilia and a piscina, all with triangular crocketed canopies; the nave, separated from the chancel by a low panelled screen with gilt iron gates, is of five bays and has arcades of four arches on clustered columns; it opens to the tower by a lofty arch; all the windows are stained, and include memorials to Bishop Wilberforce; the Rev. James Leslie Randall M.A. rector of Newbury 1857-78, and his daughter, Rebe Randall; Edmund Arbuthnot, of Newtown House, Hants, 1873, and Elizabeth his wife, 1866; and to the Rev. W. H. Majendie M.A. vicar of Speen from 1819, and rural dean; the font is modern and has a lofty and elaborately carved pyramidal cover with figures of the apostles under canopies and is suspended from a bracket of wrought iron work; the Jacobean pulpit is also richly carved in two rows of panels; it is painted a dark green relieved with gold and stands on a stone base; there is a brass eagle lectern; on the walls of the tower are brasses to John Smalwood, alias Winchcombe, mentioned above, ob. 15th Feb. 1519, and Alice his wife; to Mr. Hugh Shepley, a native of Prescott, Lancs, 1526, and rector here, ob. 1596; Francis Trenchard, of Normanton, Wilts, esq. ob. 1635; and to George Widley, "Mr. of Arts and minister of God's Word," ob. 23 Sept. 1641; there is a mural monument to Elizabeth Catherine Maria Sheldon, and in the south chancel aisle, a memorial to John Hinton A.M. above 40 years rector, 1720, and Joan his wife, 1712; also a monument to John Kimber, alderman, who erected almshouses and bequeathed various charities to the town, 1793; on the exterior south wall of the chancel is a monument with a double canopy supported on Ionic pillars, within which is a large kneeling figure of a man cased in half-armor and wearing a ruff; and on the other side three females, also kneeling; below these are eleven children; on the frieze is inscribed "Griffinus Curteyes, Nov. 3, 1587," and above it is a shield bearing the arms and crest of Curteys; on the east chancel wall is a large impaled shield with crest and mantling; dexter, erm. on a chief, 5 roundles; sinister, 7 garbs, 4, 2 and 1: the church was thoroughly restored in 1867, under the direction of Mr. Woodyer, architect, at a cost of nearly £15,000, and re-opened October 8th, 1867, by Bishop Wilberforce: during the period 1875-91 other repairs were effected at a cost of £2,444; in 1893 the walls of the south chapel were decorated, an oak screen, the gift of Ald. W. G. Adey, erected, and a re-table of Sienna marble, with medallions of lapis lazuli and jasper, was placed above the communion table: a tablet was erected in 1923 on the wall by the north door to the memory of those of the church who fell in the Great War, 1914-18, and in the north-east corner of the churchyard is a memorial to those who fell, erected at a cost of £760, and designed by Mervyn Macartney F.S.A.: the organ was reconstructed by Messrs. J. W. Walker and Sons at a cost of £3,000, publicly subscribed, and a carved oak screen in memory of Dorothy Elizabeth Majendie was placed in the north aisle instead of the former stone screen; these were dedicated by the Bishop of Oxford in 1927: there are sittings for about 900 and the church is entirely free to all parishioners.

NEWBURY WAR MEMORIAL.

The registers date from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £639, with 10 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Oxford, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Lionel Robert Majendie M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford, who is a surrogate.

Close by the church is the parish room, a structure of red brick, erected in 1884, including a verger's house, strong room, and two rooms for meetings.

The ecclesiastical parish of St. John the Evangelist was formed October 25th, 1859, out of portions of the parishes of Newbury and Greenham. The church, erected by Miss Hubbard in memory of her parents, from the designs of Mr. W. Butterfield, architect, and consecrated in 1860, is a structure of brick in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western turret containing two bells: the east and west windows and five others are stained: there are 650 sittings. The register dates from the year 1860. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Oxford, and held since 1921 by the Rev. Ernest Henry Stenning M.A. of Selwyn College, Cambridge, who is also chaplain of the Poor Law Institution and the hospital, and warden of St. Leonard's chapel, the "Litten." There are two district churches in the parish, viz.: St. Luke's, Wash common, and St. Bartholomew's, East fields.

The Roman Catholic church, dedicated to St. Joseph, is in the Romanesque style to the designs of Mr. W. C. Mangin, architect, of Preston, Lancs. It is in the form of a Latin Cross and has a campanile 101 feet in height: a prominent feature is the life-size bronze statue of Our Lord. There are sittings for between 500 and 600 people.

The Baptist church, Northbrook street, was first founded in 1640; the present building, erected in 1859, will seat 500 persons. The Primitive Methodist chapel, in Bartholomew street, erected in 1878, will seat 430 persons, the other at Stroud green, of red brick, erected in 1874, has 126 sittings.

The Wesleyan church, Northbrook street, was erected in 1837-8, and has sittings for 800 persons.

The Cemetery, on the Newtown road, is about six acres in extent, with two mortuary chapels, and is managed by a company.

The Municipal buildings, occupying an important position in Mansion House street, and on the west side of the Market place, erected during 1876 and 1877, form part of a scheme for an entire rebuilding of the public offices and town hall: the principal feature of the front elevation is a lofty tower, with illuminated clock, the lower stage of which forms the principal entrance, opening into a spacious vestibule, from which a broad staircase conducts to the principal floor, the entrance to the offices being in Mansion House street. The Old Town hall was demolished in 1909 for the purpose of widening Mansion House street and the completion of the Municipal buildings. The municipal insignia include two fine maces, one of which dates from the Stuart period, the other being somewhat later.

The Corn Exchange, standing on the east side of the Market place, was erected in 1861-2, at a cost of about £6,000, and opened on the 4th of June, 1862: it is a building of stone in the Classic style, the front elevation being relieved by four pilasters of the Corinthian order, supporting a pediment.

The offices of the Newbury and District Chamber of Trade are in Market place. This organization does valuable work in fostering and developing local trade and commerce.

A very important wool market was established here on the 30th June, 1862, on which occasion there was deposited 2,300 tods of wool: it is held annually on the first Saturday in July.

The Market day is Thursday.

The 4th September fair is held in a small meadow on the south of the town, near which is another field, in which the horse and cow fairs are held.

There is an iron clock tower in the Broadway, 30 feet in height, with four illuminated dials, four ornamental bracket lamps and two drinking fountains, erected at a cost of £278 5s. subscribed by the townspeople. A Russian gun also stands in the Broadway.

In the Market place stands a monument to Queen Victoria presented in 1902 to his native town by George Sanger esq.

The Conservative Club, erected in 1907, is an edifice of red brick with stone dressings; part of the premises are occupied by a Ladies' Conservative Club. There are extensive grounds with bowling green and tennis court.

The Newbury District Golf Club has an eighteen-hole course at Berries bank, Greenham common, two miles from the railway station, and has 370 members. Entrance fee: ladies, 3 guineas; gentlemen, 5 guineas: subscription, 5 guineas; junior members, 1 guinea. Hon. Secretary, C. W. Bloxsom.

The Hospital of St. Bartholomew, an ancient foundation, to which a charter was granted by King John, 1200-15, and which is known as "King John's Court," is still standing. In 1215, the king granted to the hospital a two days' fair for its support, and this fair is still held yearly, and is opened by the town clerk or his deputy with certain quaint formalities; the profits thereof are paid to the almsfolk: on this occasion also a penny is collected from every licensed house in the town. In the reign of Edw. VI. the Grammar School was engrafted on the foundation of the hospital, and both are now administered under a scheme which was framed in the year 1883: the seal of the hospital is of brass, circular in form, and exhibits two conjoined crosses pattée between four small stars, and round the margin the legend *DOMVS—ST. BARTHOLOMEI—IN—NEWBURY. The charity has an income of £1,058 a year, which supports 24 almshouses and the Grammar School.

in the thirteenth century; the Rev. Ernest Henry Stenning M.A. vicar of St. John's, was appointed warden in 1921: at this chapel the famous "Jack of Newbury" is said to have been married. Fuller, in his "Worthies of England," describes him as "the most considerable clothier (without fancy or fiction) England ever beheld;" he kept 100 looms at work in his own house, and in the expedition against James IV. of Scotland he is said to have equipped a contingent of 100 men for the king's service "as well armed and better clothed than any;" tradition relates that he feasted Henry VIII. and Queen Catherine of Arragon at his own house in Newbury (still existing), and that the king offered him the honour of knighthood, which he declined: he was a munificent contributor to the repair and adornment of the parish church, in which, agreeably to his desire, he was buried, together with Alice his wife; Henry Winchcombe, of Bucklebury, his descendant, was created a baronet in 1661, and married Frances, daughter of Thomas (Howard), Earl of Berkshire, but the title became extinct at the death of his son, Sir Henry Winchcombe, in November, 1705; the estates devolved on Frances, first wife of Henry St. John, the celebrated Viscount Bolingbroke, but she leaving no issue, the property passed by her younger sister to the Packer family, and was devised by Henry Packer, the last male heir, to his sister's son, Winchcombe Henry Hartley esq.

There is a church estate which produces about £258 yearly for the repairs of the church and maintenance of services. The remaining charities amount in gross to £3,208 yearly, of which £572 is applied to educational purposes, £113 to apprenticing, £36 to the clergy, £3,500 to the support of almshouses, while £103 is distributed in money and £79 in kind. There are upwards of 80 almshouses, of various foundations, in different parts of the town.

The municipal charities consist of St. Bartholomew's almshouses, Raymond's, St. Mary's and Kendrick's. Cowlade's, for the apprenticeship of poor boys and educational benefits, Kimber's, comprising six almshouses for men and six for women, in the Market place, also provides for the education of 25 boys and includes out-pensions and other gifts. The Church and Child's almshouses, in the Newtown road, comprise nine for men and six for women. Coxedd's and Pearce's charity, now administered under one scheme, has four almshouses for men in Enborne road; it also distributes weekly out-pensions and educational grants. Hunt's consists of three almshouses for women at West mills. There is also Dangerfield's benefaction and Miss Smith's Greenham charity.

The Dispensary, in West street, was established in 1835, and is supported by subscription.

Newbury District Hospital, in the Andover road, erected in 1885, is for the treatment of non-infectious cases of sickness or accident, and has 35 beds and private wards.

The Municipal Borough Infectious Diseases Hospital, on Wash common, was built in 1893 at a cost of £520, for 16 patients, and has since been enlarged at a cost of £400, for 12 additional patients.

The Free Public Library, opened in 1906, is an edifice of red brick and stone, from designs by Mr. Samuel Joseph Lee Vincent A.M.I.C.E.: towards the cost £2,000 was contributed by Andrew Carnegie esq.; the site, fittings and books were paid for by public subscription; there are 5,148 volumes.

Newbury is one of the few places possessing the right of electing boys and girls to Christ's Hospital (the Blue Coat school), now at West Horsham, Sussex, the privilege being enjoyed under the will of Mr. John West, an opulent clothier of his time and Master of the Clothworkers' Company in 1707, who was connected with this town: in the election preference is given to founders' kin.

The town is historically important as the scene of two important battles between the royal army of King

Charles I. and the Parliamentary forces. The first action was fought on the Wash and Enborne Heath, to the south of the town, 20 September, 1643, and resulted unfavourably for the king, who commanded his army in person: between five and six thousand men were slain on both sides, including the chivalrous and patriotic Lord Falkland; the tumuli where many of the dead were buried still exist on Wash common. A memorial obelisk has been erected to Lord Falkland on the battlefield, by public subscription, on a site given by Walter Money esq. F.S.A. hon. sec. to the committee. The memorial, which also commemorates Robert (Dormer), Earl of Carnarvon, Henry (Spencer), Earl of Sunderland, and other Royalist officers who fell in this battle, was inaugurated by the Earl of Carnarvon in September, 1878. The second battle was fought on the north side of the town, 27 October, 1644, at which the King and the Prince of Wales (afterwards Charles II.) were present. Cromwell also held a command on the Parliamentary side: no decided advantage was gained by either party, but the quarrel between the Earl of Manchester and Cromwell, resulting from this action, indirectly led to the death of the King and the advancement of Cromwell to the Protectorship.

The streets of Newbury exhibit a number of good specimens of ancient houses. The remains of the house occupied by Jack of Newbury near the "Jack" hotel, Northbrook street, appear to date from a period earlier than that of Henry VII. and belong most probably to the middle of the fifteenth century. A gabled house, also in Northbrook street, where the pilasters and mouldings with egg and tongue ornament are most skilfully rendered, is particularly noticeable. The most interesting specimen of old buildings that connect the town of Newbury with the palmy days of the clothing trade is the Jacobean Cloth Hall, near the Market place: the upper part is supported by oak columns or piers, the intervening spaces being closed up with brickwork splayed on either side of the pillars, and above is a bold cornice on large projecting brackets richly carved with grotesque heads; it is now used as a museum, open daily, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. from Oct. 1st to March 31st and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 1st to Sept. 30th; admission free.

The ancient Manor House which dates from 1391, together with its sixteen sixteenth-century cottages, and the garden of eight acres, were bequeathed in 1926 to the Middlesex Hospital by Dr. W. Essex Wynter, to come into its possession after the death of himself and Mrs. Wynter, as a home for retired nurses. The Manor House is believed to be the oldest intact dwelling-house in the country, and stands on the pre-Roman road which ran from Gosport to Birkenhead.

The soil on the banks of the Kennet forms water meadows in which beds of peat occur from 5 to 15 feet thick; and when burnt the ashes form a valuable fertilizer: in these peat beds very many natural and artificial antiquities have been discovered, a very complete account of which is given in the "Transactions of the Newbury District Field Club," Vol. 1872-5.

The manor, on the accession of the Normans, fell to the Earl of Perche, whose successor, Thomas, was slain at the battle of Lincoln in 1217. The Bishop of Chalons, his heir, sold it to William Marshall, Earl of Pembroke. Queen Elizabeth gave it with Benham-Valence to John Baptiste Castilian, a Piedmontese of her Privy Chamber, "for faithful services in her dangers." By purchase, Hampstead Marshall and Benham-Valence became the property of Sir William Craven kt. Lord Mayor of London in 1611, and ancestor of the noble family of Craven, in whose possession it still remains.

The area is 1,804 acres of land and 24 of water; the population in 1911 was 12,107, including 18 officers and 190 inmates in the Poor Law Institution, and in 1921, 12,295.

The population of the municipal wards in 1921 was:—
No. 1 or North, 3,735; No. 2 or East, 4,479; No. 3 or West, 4,081.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1921 was:—St. Nicholas (parish church), 5,652; St. John the Evangelist, 4,516.

SPEENHAMLAND forms part of the municipal borough of Newbury on the north; it is a separate ecclesiastical parish, formed September 14th, 1844, from the civil parish of Speen. The church of St. Mary, erected in 1831, is an edifice of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south porches, and a turret containing two bells: it was enlarged in 1879 by the addition of a new chancel, designed by G. E. Street esq. R.A. and the remainder of the building has been partially remodelled, at a total cost of £7,000; the nave and aisles were entirely rebuilt in 1911 at a cost of over £5,000; a peculiarity of this church is that it stands due north and south, and is said to have been the first church in the diocese of Oxford built on a new site since the Reformation; there is a memorial window to the Rev. J. G. Gibbs, who was for 24 years vicar of this parish: there are 480 sittings. The register dates from the year 1831. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £350, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Oxford, and held since 1918 by the Rev. William John Holloway M.A. of Oxford University, who is a surrogate. The population in 1921 was 2,051.

BERKS COUNTY COUNCIL.

Local Government Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41.

Under the above Act, Berkshire, except a certain borough, see below (a) after the 1st April, 1889, for the purposes of the Act, became an administrative county (sec. 46), governed by a County Council, consisting of chairman, aldermen and councillors (the number of councillors being determined by the Local Government Board), to be elected in manner prescribed by the Act (sec. 2).

The chairman, by virtue of his office, is a justice of the peace for the county, without qualification (sec. 46).

The police of the county are now under the control of a standing joint committee of the Quarter Sessions and the County Council, appointed as therein mentioned (sec. 9).

The coroners for the county are elected by the County Council, and the clerk of the peace is appointed by the Standing Joint Committee.

The clerk of the peace for the county is also clerk of the County Council (sec. 83-1).

The administrative business of the county (which would, if this Act had not been passed, have been transacted by the justices) is now transacted by the County Council.

(a) The following borough is for the purpose of this Act an administrative County in itself and is called a County borough (sec. 31), of which the Municipal Corporation has the power of a County Council—Reading

The Berkshire County Council meets at the Shire Hall, Reading.
